1973: THE YEAR
AT PIKEVILLE
COLLEGE

REGISTRATION

We filled out cards until our fingers were tired . . . We stood in lines that never seemed to end . . . We anticipated those first few days of class, wondering if the new science building would be ready in time for that all-important biology class . . . We learned that some of our classes were already closed . . . We thought the day would never end . . . But then it was all over . . .

" . . . A GREAT DAY FOR EASTERN KENTUCKY,"

— REP. CARL D. PERKINS

A dance featuring Genesis at the college gym on Founder's Day Eve kicked off the activities. Founder's Day 1972 marked both a look to the past, commemorating Pikeville College's eighty-third anniversary, and a look to the future, with the dedication of the Everett F. Armington Science Learning Center and the presentation of an honorary degree to Dr. Armington.

Other activities of the day included a luncheon at the college dining hall, dedication of the Norman A. Chrisman Lecture Hall in the Science Center, and the traditional canoe race. That night, the Community Concert Association presented jazz pianist Peter Nero in concert.

FOUNDER'S DAY

During Founder's Day week, the conversations of people in this area centered on one subject: "Have you seen the moon rock?" The campus of Pikeville College truly came to life that week. A small sample of the lunar surface, brought back by Apollo XV, was on display in the second floor lounge of the Science Center. People came from throughout the Tri-State Area of Kentucky, Virginia, and West Virginia to see the "moon rock."

It was a year for performances by well-known rock groups on campus. The Association played here in October, and Argent provided the music for the spring formal.

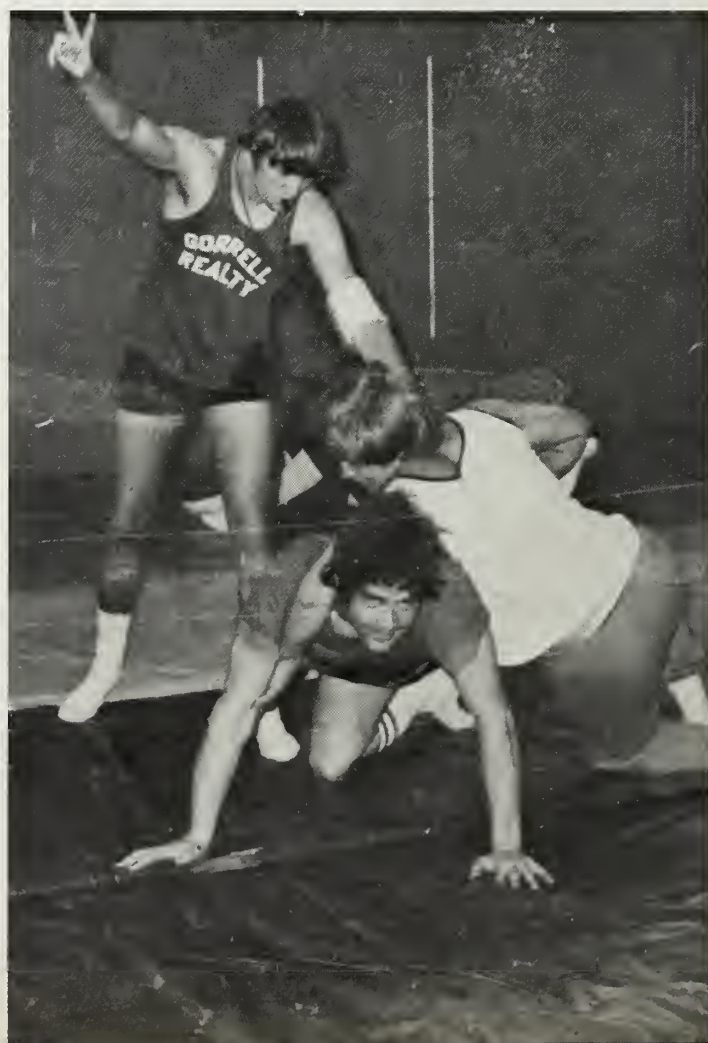

New course offerings for 1972-73 included a law internship, a Personal Enrichment Program, flight training, and a wrestling class.

To Teach, To Live, the title of a novel by Jesse Stuart, can be used to describe the lives of many Pikeville College graduates. Pikeville has long been known as a major teacher educator in Eastern Kentucky.

The photographic observation of student teacher Sue Reed on the opposite page shows some of the aspects of a day in the life of a student teacher. On this page Joyce Murphy, Marcia Ratliff, and Vivian Wallace demonstrate how underclassmen gain teaching experience before the professional education semester.

The basketball team took time out from their busy schedule to hold a clinic for youngsters from area elementary schools.

A WALK TO FISHTRAP FOR THE RESCUE SQUAD

It was one of the coldest mornings of the year, but the skies were beautiful. The game taught us the verity of the old saying, "You can't win 'em all."

POSTSCRIPT

Just as all good things must end, the year 1972-1973 came to a close. The first week in May always brings great joy — from being away from the books — but that joy is tinged with sadness from the realization that there are people we will never see again. Goodbye is a difficult word to say among friends, but we still have our memories. I have tried my best to share a few of mine with you; I hope you have enjoyed them.
